Chancellor’s Circle Business Breakfast Briefing

The California legislature and several state courts have added a litany of new rules, regulations and guidelines that affect all employers in the state. Failure to comply with recent changes in federal and California employment laws can cost your business hundreds of thousands of dollars!

Find out which new laws will affect your and your clients’ business and employees, and learn the steps you can take to help ensure compliance and avoid costly fines or litigation.

Brian Koegle from Poole & Shaffery, LLP will present his annual Employment Law Update with a review of new federal and state regulations and recent case law, including:

- A wage and hour update (minimum wage increases, misclassification issues, paid sick leave and joint employer liability);
- Harassment, discrimination and retaliation in the workplace – including new anti-bullying legislation;
- New Form I-9 (immigration status) identification issues;
- Employee handbook updates.

The presentation will also include a look ahead at anticipated court rulings and legislation affecting the employment landscape in 2014-15.
